

Megan Brodie, LLMSW

Megan Brodie, LLMSW, is the Community Relations Specialist for the Michigan Health Information Network (MiHIN) Shared Services.

Before joining the MiHIN team, Ms. Brodie worked as a clinical social worker at a variety of agencies as a psychometrician, therapist, and care coordinator, assisting individuals with a wide range of needs and mental health diagnoses. She volunteers with Early On[®] Michigan, sharing her personal story of receiving services from Early On[®] and providing support to parents of young children going through similar experiences. Megan also spends time connecting with and supporting individuals with Treacher Collins syndrome to help them navigate medical and healthcare stressors, as well as the socioemotional challenges that can arise from having a craniofacial syndrome.

Ms. Brodie received her Bachelor's degree from DePaul University and her Master's degree in Social Work from Michigan State University.
